On problems with housing

PARIII AGARWAL: India's housing sector faces a dual chal-lenge: addressing inadequate housing stock and preparing for 400 million new urban residents by 2050. Over one-third of urban residents live in informal housog 2000 Overlone-Imroot uman residents live in informal hous-ing, lacking basic amenities like tollets, water and durable struc-tures. This inadequacy is stark, with 409 to Debh residents liv-ing in substandard housing. While housing is often seen as an investment for financial returns, there's a compelling need to reframe it as a human right. Much like food and clorth-ing are essential, housing should be viewed as linegal to dignity and well-being. Policies and reg-ulations must evolve to reflect this perspective, moving beyond technical standards that deem 250 sqf radequate for families.

On issues faced by migrants

MUKTA NAIK: India's rapid MUKTA NAIK: India's rapid urbanisation is significantly fuelled by migration, with a third of the population classified as migrants. Among them, rural-to-urban and urban-to-urban migrants make up 20% each, spanning diverse groups such as aspirational middle-class households earning ₹25,000-₹30,000, constructionworkers, and seasonal rural-tonworkers, and seasonal rural-₹25,000-₹30,000, construc-tionworkers, and seasonal rural-urban labourers. These individ-uals often reside in informal rentals, which lack tenure secu-rity, proper regulations, and quality standards.

On government intervention

SHILPA KUMAR: Recognis-SHIPAKUMAR Recognising the need for security, the Jaga Mission granted land entitlement certificates to long-term residents, even without format titles. This enabled access to financial benefits ted to housing and allowed the provision of essential city services, transforming living conditions. Beyond infrastructure, slum rivabler associations were dweller associations were formed to maintain and improve communities, creating open spaces for shared use.
